tenergy 25 you can get from a lot of international sites, iruiru.com/e is good tenergy 64 seems to be available for a high price in spain and germany now i think, search mytabletennis.net topics, theres links in the forums that have places to sell

i have used it. its significantly softer, it feels a lil bit like bryce speed fx except more spinny

i had better experiences using tenergy 64 on the backhand rather than forehand, my ideal setup will be hurricane king with tenergy 64 on bh and tenergy 05 on fh

has anyone found a place where to get tenergy 64 for less than like 40 euro? that is a bit pricey

So is Tenergy 64 faster than Tenergy 05 or not?

I don't see how it can be softer and faster at the same time. Are the topsheets the same? If so, then a softer sponge usually (always?) means a slower rubber.

yes that is what i thought to but it is true, the 64 is faster then the 05 for sure, i asume it has to do with the width of the pips.
tenergy 64 and tenergy 5 pimple size is the same, sponge is also the same, but tenergy 64 has lesser number of pimples than tenergy 5.which makes it spring of even more then with te 05 and gives it more speed. It is a new technique so that is what i think and have heared from other people, it is still strange i have to admitt that:) i was used to the fact that softer rubbers are not faster then harder to lol

So, you're saying that the sponges are the same, and the topsheets are different (in terms of underlying pimple structure). That is indeed interesting.

yes that is why they have called it spring sponge i asume

yep the sponge definitely feels a little more elastic than the tenergy 05 sponge, you can feel it, like when you push your finger in, theres less resistance, but you can kind of feel my tension btw now available at megaspin for those who dont know!
