

Trojan attack on this website

Posted by admin - 2009/05/24 00:14

I would like to notify everybody that visited this website between May 1 and May 18 that there is a possibility that you were infected with the Gumblar/Martuz trojan.

I discovered it last week on Friday, and worked all weekend to remove it from my PC and from the websites I manage that it also infected. It was successfully and completely removed from this site on Monday (May 18) night.

I apologize if you were affected. The trojan will not cause any serious problems (such as loss of data) on your PC. More information about how to determine whether you have the trojan, and how to remove it if you do, can be found on my personal blog.
